“ My mother was one of the most giving people I know. When someone was in need she would help them out. Not only did she help friends but strangers as well. She had a strong work ethic and never complained about working in a factory nor did she complain about working 10 hour days standing on a hard cement floor.

She raised me as a single parent and we always had a place to live, clothes in our back, and food on the table. She took care of me and for the last six years I took care of her. It was difficult at times but we always managed to get through them. It was an blessing to be able to repay her good deeds by doing something for her. For that I'm truly grateful. Mom, I love you and miss you.
